The Induction/Orientation Program The college has an elaborate orientation programme for creating a firm foundation for an ideal teaching-learning situation. It aims to introduce the newcomers to the rich traditions of KCW and to create bonding of newcomers with their seniors and teachers. It further aims to accentuate the academic and par academic fervour in the senior students while channelizing them to concrete goal setting and achievement

They channelize the relevant feedback regarding syllabus review and ensure the recommended corrections needed from time to time.

Capacity Building Workshops for Faculty and Students- This is an attempt to obtain, improve and retain skills, knowledge for the teachers and the taught.

These follow a two-pronged strategy: the first aims at training the trainers-helping the faculty spruce up their knowledge according to changing technology and times. Various Online Education workshops and E-content developing strategies helped the teachers to modify teaching strategies. The second aspect consists of experiential learning situations for the students to enable them to have a hands-on experience at the various work situations that they will encounter in real life.

Observations and Analysis: These are the basics to any developmental process.

Departmental meetings are devoted to observations and discussion of lesson plans and unitization of the syllabi. The new staff is given special information on teaching tools that can be easily applied in the class along with the latest e-resources. Productive sessions on the availability and usage of online study materials are ensured.

Besides this, special departmental meetings are held to discuss and brainstorm various ways to deal with a topic. The results of the students are discussed and customized teaching strategies are formulated for bright and weak students in order to maximize their potential.

Reviewing and Responding to The valuable feedback from various stakeholders is reviewed and specific responses used to enhance academic outcomes of the students. The Registrar's Office is constantly supervising the performance, periodic testing and feedback along with the attendance of students.
