11. Talent Hunt

Everyone is gifted with some talent, but some people never open their package. Our college thus thrives hard to bring into light hidden talents of various students. Talent hunts give them equal opportunities to showcase their talent. The cultural committee of college strongly believed that a student's overall development involved things beyond just curriculum and thus offer students with a platform to display their flairs through events like talent hunt.

A talent hunt competition was organized by the Department of Home Science on August 17th, 2023 to encourage students to come forward and show their talents. The primary objective of the talent hunt was to identify skilled students for further participation in zonal youth festival and other inter college competitions.

Students exhibited their talent in various activities such as mehendi, phulkari embroidery, bagh embroidery, crochet, knitting, cross stitch embroidery, pakkhi making, folder making, file cover making, nail art and hairstyles. Around 15 students from different classes participated in this event enthusiastically and displayed their abilities magnificently.

The students who participated in embroidery competition, were asked to make traditional designs relevant to the culture of Panjab. Henna – designing students were given themes, like “bridal”, “karwachauth” and “environment”, keeping in consideration the prospective themes of the youth festival. The nail artists and hairstyle participants were given “marriage”, “western party” and “karwachauth” as themes to showcase their creativity. However, there was no theme for the folder making and file decoration participants.

The ones who participated in embroidery made beautiful and design and motifs. Henna designing students, keeping the theme in consideration and the time limit of two hours showed their artistic abilities to their level best. The nail artists and the hairstylists were able to justify their themes. Folders and file covers stood out with creativity using beads, pearls and other decorative items.

The Principal Dr. Iqbal Kaur was immensely proud of all the participants and applauded the wonderful show put up by the department of Home Science.

22. Baking workshop

A baking workshop was held in the Home Science department on September 8, 2023, led by Ms. Ritu Aggarwal, an agri-preneur from Ludhiana. Approximately 45 third-year Bachelor of Arts students participated in this workshop as part of their practical curriculum in Home Science.

The primary objective of the workshop was to raise awareness among students regarding the various types of millets available. Additionally, it sought to empower them by utilizing baking as a culinary method that involves the application of dry heat, typically in an oven, for food preparation.

The session was conducted by the agripreneur, who provided a comprehensive, step-by-step demonstration of cake baking. Throughout the demonstration, she emphasized the significance of incorporating millets into daily dietary practices and informed the students about the diverse range of millets suitable for consumption.

Students acquired vital skills in operating an oven, including the preheating process prior to baking, as well as mastering the whisking and cut-and-fold techniques essential in baking. The demonstration underscored the necessity of precise execution at each stage to achieve a successful final product, with the cake being baked for a duration of 45 minutes.

The workshop concluded with the students evaluating the cake using the fork test, which indicated readiness when the fork came out clean. Once the baking was complete, all participants enjoyed the cake.

75) Activity Based Learning with Dainik Jagran -Session on "Ram Adarsh Kaise?"

The topic "Ram Adarsh Kaise?" (How is Ram an ideal?) has been a subject of discussion among students, particularly in relation to their moral and ethical perspectives. Students view Lord Ram as an epitome of virtues such as truthfulness, humility, respect for elders, and commitment to duties. They cite examples from the Ramayana, like his unwavering respect for his parents' wishes (exile for 14 years) and his dedication to justice and dharma, as reasons for considering him an ideal role model.

Discussions with students reveal a range of interpretations. While many see Ram as a timeless figure representing ideal human conduct, others critically analyze the practicality of his virtues in modern contexts. Some students question whether his strict adherence to societal expectations—such as abandoning Sita to maintain societal honor—aligns with contemporary values like gender equality and individual rights.

Correlation with Dainik Jagran: Articles and columns in Dainik Jagran have often highlighted the relevance of Lord Ram's values in today's world, emphasizing how his life lessons can guide youth in making ethical choices. The newspaper also addresses debates around his decisions, fostering a balanced perspective. Students resonate with this balanced approach, appreciating Ram's ideals while discussing their applicability in the challenges of modern society.

In summary, students’ perspectives on "Ram Adarsh Kaise?" are diverse, ranging from admiration to critical analysis, with significant overlap in themes found in popular media like Dainik Jagran. This interaction between traditional values and modern viewpoints offers a rich ground for intellectual and moral discussions.
